OUR PURPOSES

An old Greek proverb tells us, "Life is a gift of nature but beautiful living is a gift of wisdom."

Our Year Book is for the purpose of setting down a record of those influences, which in the years of our High School career, have helped to guide us to that goal.

May this permanent account, in the future, lessen the habit of time to dim happy recollections.

Ernest R. Caverly

Headmaster, Brookline High School

1930 - 1931

Ernest R. Caverly, now completing his first year as Headmaster of Brookline High School, came to Brookline under most auspicious conditions. He succeeded a man who had built up in his Faculty such an unfaltering loyalty to the School that, while they grieved over the retirement of their friend and inspiration of many years, they were ready to co-operate in every way with his successor. In addition, he came with the recommendation of a highly successful career behind him.

As a teacher and administrator, his advance has been rapid, despite the fact that it was interrupted by the military activities of the World War, during which he served in the Quartermaster Corps in Washington and Jacksonville. His first position was in a private school in Concord, Massachusetts, after which he became a teacher of English in the Technical High School at Springfield. Becoming interested in administrative work, he sought and was elected to the principalship of the high school in Brattleboro, Vermont. He left Brattleboro to become Head of the Department of English at Newton, Massachusetts, where he remained until 1926, when he again gave up teaching for administrative—this time of the Drury High School of North Adams. After four successful years at this school, Mr. Caverly was elected to the position of Headmaster in Brookline. Now the magic carpet makes another turn, and presto! he is whirled out of the principal's sanctum on to the Superintendent's throne, to succeed Oscar C. Gallagher, lately resigned an account of ill health. Thus one event "doth tread upon another's heels

So fast they follow."

Mr. Caverly is a man of varied interests. He has been active in the New England Association of Teachers of English and has appeared with frequency upon the programs of the Association. He has been a Director of the National Council of Teachers of English. For a time he was Chairman of a Committee of the National Council, appointed to make a study of textbooks. He is joint author of Book III of the Aldine English Series. Besides these purely professional pursuits—Mr. Caverly is fond of literature, music, drama, motoring, and travel. He is typically of New England in his devotion to his family and his church. A former colleague provides a more adequate portrait than would be possible from the present writer's limited acquaintance:

"Mr. Caverly has always shown a strong professional spirit. He has always taken a lively interest in the affairs of his community and has always been active in church work. He has many friends who have been pleased to notice his steady advance. His faithful application to his work, his enthusiasm, and his undoubted capability have led us to expect such promotion. We all naturally wish him success in his new field."

Now, we too, having greeted him, must wish him "Bon voyage" as he sets forth upon his next adventure. We hope the seas will be calm, the currents and winds favorable, and the port a far one of vision and dreams.

Class President's Address

FRIENDS:

I address you thus because I consider everyone present in this auditorium a friend of the Class of 1931. Mr. Caverly, our loving friend and advisor; parents, whose wise counsels and solicitude for our welfare have softened some of the hard spots in our lives up to this point; teachers, whose excellent instruction and ever patient helpfulness have prepared us morally and scholastically for future life; and those of you who are here solely to do honor to the Class of 1931, at its last public appearance before graduation—we welcome you all as our friends.

The Senior Class, in holding its Class Day exercises in the evening, is not so acting in order that it may be termed different from previous classes. It does so in order that more of its friends, who otherwise could not be here, might attend. We hope you have enjoyed the outdoor exercises, whose success was made possible by the co-operative endeavor of the three lower classes of the School, and we know that you will be interested in the ceremonies to follow. You will hear what our Prophet and Prophetess, gifted with an uncanny combination of intelligent foresight and prophetic license, have to say concerning our individual futures; our Historian has not, like Boswell, endeavored to record every minute step of our collective biography, but he will present for your approval a comprehensive survey of our progress in the past four years; because of the approaching demise of the B. H. S. Class of 1931, as an active organization, we have appointed an able lawyer who will read to you our last will and testament, enumerating our various bequests to those left behind; and our class oration, poem, and song will demonstrate to you our ideals and feelings about Brookline High School.

We are fast approaching the time when we must leave this, our home for the past four years, and either continue upon the road to learning, or set out to carve for ourselves places in the world of business. May we always have such friends, teachers, advisors, and confidants as we have been privileged to enjoy at the Brookline High School.

PLAYING THE PART

Ho, my friends and fellow players, knaves and heroes, one and all,
Listen to my lines, delivered, in this Life's great music hall.
I bespeak my role to Heaven, while the Furies of the Pit
Seem to mock and mimic rudely what I counterfeit for wit.

Aye, we're actors, so said Shakespeare, and our roles are gay or drear
As the soul we put within them, for the space of time we're here.
So step forward to the footlights and put every line across,—
For applause is to be sought for, and there's nothing to be lost.

Play your finest to the audience that you call your "fellow man."
He's the critic of your virtue, so entice him as you can
With a role of worthy showing and a show that's fair and square,
And a character surpassing any other playing there.

Be you prince or poor of substance, be you handicapped or lame—
If you yet can play your part well, you are sure to win acclaim.
All can not be in spotlight, but its glare is often hot,
And a little solid comfort beats lost fame by quite a lot.

Get your cues and be a trouser who stands up and never whines.
When the critics all are choleric and he can't recall his lines.
Though they've old eggs in the gallery and a black cat in the pit,
Play your part and play it finely and you're bound to make a hit.

So this life of ours is acting from the cradle to the grave
And the roles are of our choosing be we sinner, saint, or knave.
Life to you has borne a challenge in the circumstances of birth
Let your answer be success and let your memory be your worth.

Oration

CHARLES NAYOR

As one approaches a great city, there first appears on the horizon a faint glow. When one draws nearer, this glow increases in clearness until long rays of light become visible; and presently the splendor of the city lies before you in all its brilliance. According to a glorious legend of ancient Greece, we may trace the source of this splendor to a famous figure in mythology, Prometheus, who brought light from heaven that men might begin to realize the fruits of civilization. He was the Fire-Bringer; and since his time every man and woman has been a light bearer, the eminence of the person depending upon the clarity and brightness of the light shining upon his contemporaries from his own individual achievements.

These lights were kindled with unending toil and privation; they have been fed with sacrifice, hope, and courage; and from the most brilliant of these lights many other aspiring torches have been kindled, thus augmenting original splendor. Abraham Lincoln was a light bearer, holding aloft a beacon which shone clearer and farther than that of any other man. In the infinite toil of preserving a mighty nation and of liberating an oppressed race, his lamp, fed by sacrifice and courage, was a guiding light that later led his people to higher aims and loftier ambitions.

Classmates, to-day in the hands of each of us there lies burning lamps: some are faint and intermittent like the fireflies on a summer night; others are already shining like the clearest of stars. During the years that have passed we have been lighting our lamps and tending them. And now—what does the future veil? A man's hand is never of any use on the door of opportunity unless it is a hand already strong enough to push open that door, enter, and take possession. Are the torches in our hands ready to fire other lamps? Are they ready to make the highway brighter for those who are to come after? Will they flicker weakly from the influence of fate or will they shine with a steady glow vitalized by the winds of opposition?

Living in this age of opportunity, we may feel confident that our future days promise to each and every one of us the possibility of ascending to limitless heights. It remains for us to use these opportunities in a manner that will make for the greatest light upon the pathway before us, to go humbly and patiently forward, desiring the best, laboring faithfully, not failing in courage, nor giving way to rash impulses, always earnest and serious in purpose, and with a definite goal ever before us. As we pass this mile-stone of our lives, and carry on into the future, may our lights always symbolize the best that the Brookline High School has given us! May they burn with a spirit of faith, with a spirit of hope, and with a spirit of courage.

THOMAS KELLY

Class History

We have all had our fill of book reports during the last four years. No one has suffered from these more than I, but I shall long remember my last book report before leaving our alma mater. I searched through the library for a long time and, not succeeding in finding what I wanted, I asked Mrs. Siebens to help me make my choice. She suggested that I try: "Lives of Famous People" by Tyler Kepner, Professor of History at Oxford University, "Bliss's Biography of Modern Notables," and "Lives of Our Famous Contemporaries" by a comparatively unknown author. After hastily glancing through the first two volumes I turned to the third and to my amazement I discovered that it contained the achievements of 1931 during their stay of four years at Brookline High School. It read as follows:

The Class of '31 entered Brookline High School having the distinction of being the largest to enroll up to that time. We immediately elected more or less blindly, but very successfully our Freshman officers: President, Chester Litman, Vice-President, Donald Broadbent, and Secretary-Treasurer, Florence Freedman. Immediately Alice Werner and Fred Sherry surged forward from the masses assuming responsible positions on the Court of Justice and Teacher-Student Council respectively. The athletic side of school life was by no means neglected; John Prendergast and Don Broadbent attained the coveted honor of winning a varsity "B" in swimming. The girls, not to be outdone, had the following on the varsity swimming team: Tina and Tella Morrison, Rosalind Badarraco, Betty Greenleaf, Alice Werner and Charlotte Levine. Alice Werner also achieved the outstanding honor of making the Varsity Hockey Team; Rosalind Badaracco further raised the prestige of the class by earning her Varsity "B". Several members of the class demonstrated their musical ability in the band.

After the vacation we returned and began the campaign for a bigger and better year by electing Chet Litman as the pilot of our class, with Alice Werner as his first mate, Barbara Richey as paymaster. The influence of Phyllis Green and Alice Werner was felt in the Court of Justice and Teacher-Student Council respectively. We provided almost a monopoly in Dramatics: Jean Goodale, seizing the leading feminine role, which she held for the next two years, was supported by four of her fellow classmates, James Boston, Fred Durkee, Tom Ducey and Thelma Science. The band and orchestra were both swelled in number by members of the class. We as Sophomores, besides attaining the great distinction of having "Ben" Hootstein, Louis Wolek, and John Horne on the varsity football team, had the unique distinction of having Bernard Hootstein named captain-elect of football and track. On the varsity baseball team the pitching staff was greatly reinforced by Andrew Madden. The boys' swimming team was strengthened to the nth degree by Don Broadbent and William Nisson. One-half of the girls' hockey team was made great by Rosalind Badaracco, Helen Collier and Betty Greenleaf. The team went through the season undefeated.

Entering our semi-final year, we elected Winslow Robart as head man, Alice Werner as his first assistant, Betty Greenleaf as Scribe and Charles French as Comptroller-General. Immediately entering into the swing of the school sirit, the football team took the offensive under the leadership of Bernard Hootstein, ably assisted by Frank Cavanaugh, Jarvis Woodward, James Goldin, Paul Goldman, Tom Kelley, Charles Naylor, George Racheotes, and Louis Wolek. The season was not very successful; however, it resulted in a moral victory for Brookline in as much as we held the strong Newton team to a scoreless tie. The Girls' Hockey Team then took the field and turned in a very successful season. The team was composed of Juniors among whom were: Rosalind Badaracco, Mary Carroll, Helen Collier, Helene Dawson, Mary Galvin, Betty Greenleaf, Peggy Malone, Dorothy Manning, and Alice Werner. The Boys' Swimming Team won its share of victories and wound up by taking third place in the Interscholastic Meet. William Hyland, Robert Weinrebe, and Bert Richards made their letters in this department. In the lapse of time between sports, the students turned their minds to other things with the result the Honorary Society was increased to the number of ten. The musically inclined of our class lent their support to the band and orchestra.

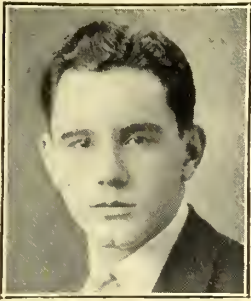

About this time of year the annual production of Dramatics was presented and the class threw its support towards it success. "The Youngest" by Philip Barry was presented with Jean Goodale, Elizabeth Weston, and Jerome Hopper commanding leading roles. Then came the spring which, of course, brings with it track and baseball. The track team led by Bernie Hootstein was dominated by members of our class: it was not through lack of effort that results fell short of the goal desired. Those making their letters were Charles Gow, Lindsey Brigham, Capt. Hootstein, Chester Litman, Charles Naylor, and Robert Kenswil. Then came the call for baseball. Responding to the call Andrew Madden, Norman Jamieson, Louis Wolek, Tom Ainsworth, and Tom Mahan took their gloves and went out to conquer. At the end of the season they came back with a second place in the battle for Suburban League honors.

In the fall we came back to carry the battle through to a grand and glorious finish. Going to the polls for the last voting we elected Chester Litman for the third time as our grand and exalted leader, Katherine Plakias as his first lieutenant, Betty Greenleaf as secretary and Tom Kelley as guardian of the shekels. The football team started the fireworks; under the leadership of Tom Kelley it completed the season undefeated but for one game, crowning the season with a 38 to 0 victory over Newton. The seniors on the team were Tom Kelley, Louis Wolek, Ben Hootstein, Charles Naylor, James Goldin, and Chester Litman. Each letterman was presented with a gold football by the Athletic Council. Wolek, Hootstein, Kelley, and Naylor were named on the All-Scholastic Team. Tom Kelley, Winslow Robart, Charles Naylor, and Chet Litman upheld the high standards of the Court of Justice. The Sagamore, our school paper, under the very competent direction of Lindsey Brigham functioned as never before. Dramatics with Jean Goodale and versatile Mr. Litman as suming the leading roles, supported by Tom Ducey, Glenn Rink, S. John Dwyer, and Evelyn Landers was declared a success both financially and socially. Elizabeth Weston stepped into the limelight as winner of Prize Speaking. The Swimming Team was led on to victory by Captain William Hyland, aided by John Quinn; the team recapturing the Meehan Trophy which had been out of Brookline hands for a period of one year. Under the spell of Mr. Naylor's commanding genius the Marshal force performed its duties superbly well. The track team could not have survived without the Senior Class. Brigham, Hootstein, Varney, and Litman spent their time burning up the cinders. Incidentally, Mr. Varney walked off with first place in three meets in his specialty, the high jump. Captain Badaracco of the Girls' Hockey Team led her teammates, Helen McIndoe, Peggy Malone, Helen Collier, Alice Werner, Mary Galvin, Betty Greenleaf, and Dorothy Manning to a victory over Newton.

Let me conclude with the regret that the High School must be deprived of such an outstanding class. To the underclassmen we leave the high pinnacles of our success which they may aspire to, but must remember that no matter how high their attainment may be, they can never approach the greatness of the Class of 1931.

JOSEPHINE BLATT

THE CHARACTERS

The Judge: CHARLES FRENCH

The Court Crier: JOSEPHINE BLATT

Those present in the Courtroom: THE CLASS OF 1931

Time: Subsequently

Place: A courtroom, bench left.

The Class is standing, awaiting the arrival of the Judge. Enter the Court Crier, left, followed by the Judge, who takes his place before the bench and remains standing during the following speech.

Court Crier: Hear Ye! Hear Ye! Hear Ye! All those having any-things to do before the Court of the Brookline High School draw near, give your attendance and you shall be heard. God Save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts!

The Judge bows to the Jury and takes his place at the bench.

Judge: The ladies and gentlemen of the Jury are: Misses Elsie Dawson, Audrey Price, Barbara Frank, Edna Gordon, Celia Gomberg, Esther
Graham, and Marion Donahue; and Messrs. William Healy, James Monagle, William Morissey, Aimé Gauthier, and Melvin Hill. Will those persons having any interest in the cases which will be heard kindly rise as their names are called. We will now proceed with the business of the day.

Court Crier: The first case on the list is Glenn Rink against Norman Sondheim. Sondheim said Rink was the greatest actor in Massachusetts.
Glenn is suing Norman for slander.

Judge: Slander?

Crier: Yes, Glen says he's the greatest actor in the world.

Judge: You'd better read the next case.

Crier: The next case is that of Greta Hill and Sara Irwin, memory experts. They are suing Marcia Kantor who refuses to pay for the course she took in "How to Perfect Your Memory."

Judge: What has Marcia to say in defence?

Crier: She doesn't remember taking the course.

Judge: Oh! Oh! I have given out a warrant for the arrest of Armstrong and Smith on the charge of carrying weapons.

Crier: Yes, an officer caught him going into a theater with a bag of grapefruit. The next case is one of trespass. John Prendergast was caught swimming in the private pool of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Nelson. Mrs. Nelson was formerly Miss Dorothy Manning. Bernard said he had a sign up in front of the pool marked "Private. No Trespassing."

Judge: Didn't Prendergast see the sign?

Crier: Yes, but he says he never reads anything marked "Private."

Judge: Here's an accident case. Winslow Robart was driving his green Ford down Tappan Street with four passengers—Peggy Malone, Alice Sheldon, Marie Mullooney, and Vera Thomas. Suddenly Betty Greenleaf turned out of Beacon Street with Jean Wells, Elizabeth Rosenfeld, Devota Michelson, and Katherine McNeilly in her car. Robart saw her, but apparently went right on, and they met without any introduction. Betty claims that she signalled she was going to turn. What has Robart to say for himself?

Crier: Winslow says that the next time a girl points to the left, he's going to watch out. She's liable to turn left.

Judge: Read the next case.

Crier: This is a very unusual one. Raymond Reid stole two kisses from Lillian Levine.

Judge: We'll have to call that PETTY larceny. Of course the law compels him to give them back again.

Crier: But he can't. He gave them to Rose Steiman and Sadie Streletsky.

Judge: Ah! Then we'll charge them with receiving stolen goods. Next case!

Crier: This is another automobile case. Margaret Ferguson, Myra Fritz, Pauline Goldberg, Adele Lubitz, Selma Silverman, Cecil Rosen and Anna Goldberg, who were driving in an Austin, were arrested for speeding. Of course the officer said he'd have to pinch them.

Judge: Then what did they say?

Crier: They asked him to pinch them where it wouldn't show.

Judge: Here's a case of false advertising. Evelyn Landers, Doris Cohen, and Janet Helman are giving a correspondence course in dancing. Sophie Kelly says she paid for a whole course in advance because the advertisement said the dancing instructor was a man.

Crier: How does the ad read?

Judge: Helman-Landers-Cohen's Correspondence course in Dancing. Instruction by mail.

Crier: I just gave Jeanne Aronson an examination for naturalization. Here are her results in the historical part.

Question: Who was George Washington? Answer: Martha Washington's husband.

Question: Tell me something about Adams. Answer: What are Adams?

Question: Write a paragraph on Harding. Answer: I'm not sure about Harding. Isn't it just the opposite of softening?

Judge: She'll pass, I guess.

Crier: Here's a vagrancy charge against Thomas Neary, Philip Raker, John O'Brien and Herbert Westbrook. They've been lying out on the Common so long, the squirrels are beginning to think they are nuts.

Judge: Maybe the squirrels are right.

Judge: Listen to this one. Helene Rosenbush, Margaret A. Hickey, Flora Mastromarino, Nordica Johnson, Margaret O'Neill, Doris Reed, and Beatrice Rittenberg took a course at Harvard. They passed, but all the boys in the class flunked. They wouldn't concentrate.

Crier: But that isn't really a criminal offense.

Judge: Don't you see, it's interfering with the "males".

Crier: Oh! The next case is Ruth Norman vs. Maxine Levin.

Judge: What's the charge?

Crier: Profanity. Ruth claims that Maxine called her an improper fraction and a three-legged triangle.

Judge: This case says that Alice Werner, Mary Mawhinney, Henrietta Hatch, Josephine Johnson, Evelyn Kantor, Elizabeth Weston, and Esther Sussman have been monopolizing all the boys at college. We'll have to prosecute them under the Sherman Act.

Crier: Somebody petitioned that we appoint a guardian for Fred Varney. Do you think Clifford Kells will do?

Judge: Yes. Officer Tatel just arrested four girls for walking through the streets masked. They were May Kaffenbeg, Dora Hellerman, Doris Kelsey and Evelyn Goldstein. They said they were going to the Gram-marians' Fancy Dress Ball. Mary was made up as a defective verb, Dora went as an indefinite article, and Doris was dressed in the Subjunctive Mode.

Crier: Well, what about Evelyn?

Judge: She claims she wasn't even masked, but Officer Tatel says she look just like a split infinitive.

Crier: It says here that Katherine Plakias, Priscilla Robinson, Phyllis Hall, Miriam Helpern, Zelda Katzeff, Peggy Gainer, Betty Stiles, and Leona Wallenberg walked across Tremont Street in their Class Day costumes. The male autosist couldn't concentrate on the traffic signals, and there was a tie-up. Officers Henry Daley and Robert Ehrlich brought the girls in for obstructing traffic.

Judge: Here's a case where Charlotte Hinden is suing Dr. Howard Mason and his assistant nurses, Edith Taylor, Clara Wallenberg, and Ruth Mahon. Charlotte says Dr. Mason charged her ten dollars for pulling a tooth. She says it took only five minutes.

Crier: What does Dr. Mason say?

Judge: He says after this he'll pull out her teeth slow motion.

Crier: Look at the next case. Barbara King is suing Anitra Freedman for slander.

Judge: What did Anitra say?

Crier: She wrote this poem for the Transcript.

Barbara King, without a falter
States that she will reach the altar
Still, before she gets the ring
They'll have to alter Barbara King."

Judge: Well, what does Barbara say?

Crier: She says that Anitra is ——. We'd better read the next case.

Judge: Jean Smith, Dorothy Zalkind, Ruth Nelson, Helen Hurley, Margaret Robinson and Gladys Walter have been charged with disturbing the peace.

Crier: What were they doing?

Judge: Drinking soup at the Kenmore.

Crier: The next case is the law firm—Frederick O'Brien and Samuel Wright suing Edmund Madden for their fee.

Judge: What has Madden to say?

Crier: He says he'll give them just as much as their services are worth.

Judge: Then what are the lawyers kicking about?

Crier: They say they can't work as cheaply as that.

Judge: Read the next case.

Crier: Helene Gaulin, who rents one of Thomas Reynolds' apartments is trying to break her two-year lease.

Judge: What's the matter?

Crier: Well, Ruth Kravit practices on the piano next door, Dorothy O'Connor dances on the floor above her, and Muriel Einstein sings on the floor below her. It must be a quiet little apartment.

Judge: The court has decided to dismiss the cases of the following: Margaret F. Hickey, Evelyn Omansky, Phyllis Rosenberg, Helen Conaty, Helene Vigeant, Robert McAleer, Lawrence Molly, Eoin Nyhen, Philip Simon and Robert Weinrebe. These will be put on parole "nol pros."

Crier: Rosalind Badaracco is suing Henry Finger. She claims that Henry promised to marry her years ago, but never seemed to get around to it. Finger declares that he is too busy with his butterfly collection.

Judge: Case adjourns to give Henry time to get over the busy season.

Crier: The former Miss Alice Sheldon charges Miss Dorothy Shumak's Private School with being a disgraceful institution.

Judge: Well, well, what's the matter?

Crier: Alice claims that they've been teaching her little girl all about improper fractions.

Judge: I see that Harold Levenson sued Donald Hatch for infringing upon the patent of his late achievement, the bladeless knife without a handle.

Crier: Who registered the invention first?

Judge: Well, Howard Fox, Levenson's lawyer looked it up in Washington, and he says they're both wrong. It was invented in 1931 by a fellow named Pat. Pending.

Crier: A number of radicals rioted on Boston Common when officers Edward Allen, Arthur Baker, Thomas Logan, and Harry Paul tried to stop them from making speeches. The Socialist leaders were Edward Chandler, Frank Adley, Francis Fahey, Murray Feinberg, Bernice Cohen, Margaret Essery, and Henry Libber.

Judge: I suppose Ethel Hansen, Irene Lourie, Ruth McLarnan, Alice Prince, and Florence Dawson were some of the prominent "Reds." Warm occasion!

Crier: Did you see where James Linehan, Sam Price, and William Maltzman were arrested for tying to steal chickens from John McCue?

Judge: That was a foul deed, wasn't it?

Crier: No, the chickens turned out to be Frances Rothenberg, Ernestine Rosenbush, and Margaret Conway.

Judge: Here's a case of burglary. Maurice Streletsky, night watchman at the Capitol Theatre, was awakened and beaten by four bandits, Monday last. As soon as he realized what was happening, he summoned up all his courage, whipped out his night stick and started sprinting in the opposite direction.

Crier: What did he do that for?

Judge: He says he going to keep on running around the world till he came back to the original spot and then sneak up on the robbers.

Crier: Clever fellow! Did he recognize the thieves?

Judge: Yes, they turned out to be Francis Donahue, John Killam, and Norman Jamieson.

Crier: Another crowd of girls belonging to a sorority were arrested for disturbing the peace. Ruth Fritz, Rowena Pollina, Adele Cohen, and Lucille Blakely were initiating Constance Cushman and Bettina Blunt. The poor pledgees were standing on the corner of Tremont and Park Streets crying "Hallelujah"! at the top of their lungs.

Judge: I see that Myles McGrail, wealthy financier, is suing the Atlantic Tugboat Company owned by Julius Litter. McGrail was taking a short voyage along the coast with Miss Agatha Barron, Gladys Brightman, Rebecca Brodsky, and Beverly Dunn accompanied by Andrew Madden, Alfred Levine, Hollis Levenson, and Clinton Hill as guests, when the ship ran up on some rocks.

Judge: Who was piloting it?

Crier: John Curtis with a crew consisting of Dick Whittier, William Colby, Joseph Dublin, and Paul Goldman.

Judge: Wasn't there any warning around to steer clear of the rocks?

Crier: Yes. First Mate Colby came up and told Curtis to be careful, and that he had seen a life-buoy afloat on top of the water.

Judge: What did Curtis say?

Crier: John said: "Don't be absurd, Colby. If it's floating on the water, it's not Life-Buoy, it's Ivory."

Judge: Here's a case where Bernard Hootstein of football fame, has been arrested for trying to pass a phoney transfer to Conductor Robert Meharg, at Coolidge Corner. Grace Thompson, who was standing near by, called the misdemeanor to Officer Meharg's attention.

Crier: I'll bet that that's the first time Hootstein ever made an intercepted pass.

Judge: Here's a case where Jarvis Woodward and Tom Ainsworth are arrested for swindle. Selma Anthony, Cyril Blackwood, Henry Carlisle, and James Davidson claim that they bought worthless stocks from the firm, and were unable to get their money back.

Crier: What kind of stocks were they?

Judge: Well, they used to be oil, but they've been watered so much that they're quite diluted.

Crier: It's getting so that a gentleman's wardrobe is uncomplete unless he has a marriage suit.

Judge: How's that?

Crier: Well, here's Jerome Horne, husband of the former Miss Leona Wallenberg, being sued for desertion. Mrs. Horne claims that Jerome deserted her for Miss Lois Grow.

Judge: Here's a queer case. Two thieves entered the studio of Miss Janet Alexander, which she had loaned for the evening to Martha Bolger, Myron Morse, Dorothy DeLorey, Joyce Callahan, and Lillian Wexler, for a party. They stole pictures of the famous musicians, Martha Dodge, Helene Dawson, and Evelyn Levenson.

Crier: Have the thieves been identified?

Judge: No, but the pictures were later found at the home of the two bachelors, Emilé Mettetal and Jerome Hopper, who declare that they brought them at an auction sale.

Crier: Elizabeth Bennett is brought to court by the Misses Natalie and Sylvia Broudy for disturbing the peace. Elizabeth claims she was only practising her singing lessons.

Judge: Mr. Joseph Shaw, grandson of the famous wit and novelist, George Bernard Shaw, was arrested for accosting Miss Adrienne Cohen. She declares that he walked right up to her and asked her to lunch with him.

Crier: You can dismiss that case. He probably mistook her for Frances Somers.

Judge: Here's the next one. A minister's car driven by Mr. Tom Ducey and containing the Reverend Thomas Kelley and his wife, the former Helen Collier, was in a collision with a milk wagon driven by Mr. Otto Herman. The milk was scattered all over the road, but Otto says that there's no use crying over this spilt milk,—there's enough water in it anyhow. He is just suing for the price of the milk.

Crier: Harry Levi and Albert Kefauver are suing James Boston, the modern Ziegfeld for breach of contract. Boston was scheduled for their theatre with his troupe of girls, including Jean Goodale, Bessie Abrams, Mary Allen, Ruth Andelman, Edith Anderson, Kathryn Baker, and Ruth Blackwood. Boston says his chorus consisting of Janice Bigelow, Mary Brebbia, Carol Brown, Geraldine Chandler, Edith Cherney, Betty Crane, and Christina Morison delayed the performance while making costumes for its famous Gunga Din Dance.

Judge: No suit there.

Judge: I see that Florence Freedman charges Francis Kentley with annoying her.

Crier: Does Kentley deny the charge?

Judge: No, he says ninety-nine out of a hundred want to be kissed.

Crier: Well?

Judge: But she was the hundredth.

Crier: Louis Wolek, the foremost wrestler in the United States, is suing Arnold Aronofsky for assault. He says that Aronofsky was angry because he had gone out with his girl friend. As soon as Wolek gets back into training again, he intends to renew the case. He has four witnesses, Saul Levine, Sam Harris, Charles Malloy and John Hannon.

Judge: I see that Grace Hickey is suing the famous Scotch joker, Helen McIndoe, for alienation of her husband's affections. Miss McIndoe says that she did not know the young man who was giving his attention to her was married.

Crier: Isn't that just like Helen?

Oh, Clarence Funk, owner of the Pay-As-You-Wear Clothing Company is suing Frederick Durkee, Ralph Dobbs, and Elliot Grandberg for failing to pay for suits after they had worn them out.

Judge: You say the suits are all worn out?

Crier: Yes.

Judge: Then that technically closes the case.

Crier: How is that?

Judge: Well, neither party is able to renew the suit.

Crier: I see that Charles Naylor, political boss of Tammany Hall, New York City, has an action against the New York Evening Star for slander.

Judge: What did the newspaper say about him?

Crier: It said "We would like to see Mr. Naylor put some of his speeches into the fire?"

Judge: What apology does the paper offer?

Crier: The editors, Margaret Holt and Lindsey Brigham, say that it was originally written, "We would like to see Mr. Naylor put some fire into his speeches," but that someone monkeyed with the type. Wesley MacLeod, Naylor's right hand man, doesn't know what it's all about, but just to show his interest he knocked down Burnett Nicholas, star reporter of the paper.

Judge: Strange way to settle one's affairs. Do you know that Mary Galvin is bringing into court the following men, John Quinn, Walter Young, William McGuire, and John Murphy, for assault. The Telephone Company wanted to put a pole in front of Miss Galvin's house. After they had dug the hole, she went out and sat in it so they were unable to erect the pole. The workers tried to get her out in vain. As usual Mary was not to be driven. We'll throw out the case instead.

Crier: Did you know that Officer William Mackenzie, the gorilla of the Boston Police Department, arrested Thomas Mahan for selling the unemployed apples on Washington Street? This is the third offence.

Judge: Well, tell him if we catch him again, he won't need to worry about unemployment. He'll be working for the City. What is the next case about?

Crier: It's a customs complaint this time. Louise Bampton was returning from Europe with Lester Popkin when she stepped into the Custom House to have her baggage examined. Richard Stevenson and Frank Cavanaugh, the customs officials, claim that she had an Austin concealed in the false bottom of her trunk.

Judge: Oh, yes, I heard about that. Lester tried to jolly the officers, but they would not listen. A nice tidy little fine she'll have to pay. What's the next story?

Crier: A divorce case! And whose do you think? Edna Teitelbaum's. She wants to change William Davidson.

Judge: What for?

Crier: For Hollis Levenson.

Judge: That's the third time she's asked for a refund. Last year it was Abraham Isenberg. Two years ago it was Paul Goldman.

Crier: Yes, Your Honor.

Judge: Nowadays it takes a woman just five minutes to make up her face, but she needs five years to make up her mind. Well, grant the decree.

Crier: Here's a really interesting case. One night Leonard Green was standing under a window of Alice Kirrane's house, serenading Alice on his ukelele. In the apartment above, John Hornsey was trying to get some sleep. On the window sill of his bedroom stood a large brick flower pot. After weighing the matter carefully, John decided that he needed the sleep more than he did the flowerpot, and he acted accordingly. Green was unable to complete his serenade, but after he had separated himself from the flower pot, he filed a suit against Hornsey.

Judge: What was the charge?

Crier: Contempt of courtship. He ought to get sixty days.

Judge: Another one of those pay cases. William Betts, Donald Hirschberg, Forrest Perry, and William Brosnahan, employees of the C. K. Litman Toothpaste Factory are suing for back pay. Litman is vey much pained and grieved to think mere material gain means so much to those people. However, as soon as business picks up, he says he will be glad to pay back what he owes them—in toothpaste samples.

Crier: William Wooding is brought to court on the charge of swindle, by Mary Geoghegan, Effie Knowles, Hazel Tonneseon, and Esther Conaty. The plaintiffs claim that Wooding has been selling them the State House for three years at ten dollars down and five dollars a week. They are quite sure the State House must have been all paid for by now, and are beginning to think that Wooding is adding extra instalments.

Judge: We'll give them all a free vacation in Waverly. Here I see that Cecile Goldblatt and Alice Conlon are now making modernistic furniture. William Hyland bought what he thought was a bed from them. Now he wants to return his purchase.

Crier: What's wrong with it?

Judge: He says he slept in it three weeks before he found out it was a bookcase.

Judge: That's the last case, isn't it?

Crier: Yes, Your Honor.

Judge: Then I guess we'll adjourn the court.

Crier: (standing at desk) Hear ye! Hear ye! Hear ye! All those having anything to do before the Brookline High School Court, at present depart. God save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts!

THOMAS DUCEY

Last Will and Testament

Be it hereby known to all men: that we, the Class of 1931 of Brookline High School in the Town of Brookline and in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being of sound mind and memory, but knowing the uncertainty of this life, do make this our last will and testament which revokes all wills heretofore made by us.

After payment of our just dues and funeral charges, we bequeathe and devise as follows:

First: We, the Class of 1931, leave sincere regrets that we shall not be able further to continue our education under the capable guidance of Mr. Caverly, who has tried so hard to fill the great space in our hearts left by Mr. Akers.

Second: We leave many broken-hearted teachers to the Junior Class and hope that these Juniors will be able to please the teachers as much as we have——Not.

Third: Harold Levenson leaves one pair of horse clippers to any undergraduate needing a haircut.

Fourth: Charlie French leaves his poor little Gracie to struggle on alone.

Fifth: We, the boys of 1931, leave to Mr. Hines, one pipe and a clean pair of white socks.

Sixth: George Racheotes leaves one orange necktie in remembrance of March 17, 1931.

Seventh: Jean Goodale leaves her dramatic ability to Frances Ford.

Eighth: We leave the mayoralty of Brookline to Mr. Barnes.

Ninth: Bernie Hootstein leaves his all-round ability to Lefty Cahill.

Tenth: The boys of '31 leave to Mr. Bemis, one Gillette Razor blade and a lot of hope.

Eleventh: Tom Kelly leaves his football ability to Eddie Sherrill.

Twelfth: Chet Litman leaves his fine leadership to Bob Hall.

Thirteenth: Helen McIndoe leaves many loud and weird noises echoing throughout the corridors to anyone who may hear them.

Fourteenth: We leave to Mr. Harbour one book entitled "Cynics" written by Evelyn Omansky.

Fifteenth: Charlie Naylor leaves the supervision of future opera parties to John Minahan.

Sixteenth: We leave to Mr. Corcoran, one can of paint for his car—pardon us, his Ford.

Seventeenth: We leave to Ralph Dobbs one can of Flit in case his Austin gets out of control.

Eighteenth: Billy Hyland leaves his swimming ability to Bob Richey.

Nineteenth: Tom Reynolds leaves his famous blush to Dick Holt.

Twentieth: We leave to Mr. McTighe one net to aid him in capturing pigeons during future assemblies.

Twenty-first: Billy Davidson leaves his small place in the Senior Class to little Jimmy Keary.

Twenty-second: Lindsey Brigham leaves his track ability to some dark horse.

Twenty-third: Louie Watson leaves his puzzling case of insanity to Andy Badaracco.

Twenty-fourth: We leave our Baseball Team to the Boston Red Sox. (They could not do any worse.)

Twenty-fifth: We leave to Mr. Flemings one megaphone so that he may learn how to croon.

Twenty-sixth: Lou Wolek leaves his way with the girlies to Jackie Kelly.

Twenty-seventh: We leave to the girls in the lunchroom a one gill measure to help them in dishing up the soup.

Twenty-eighth: We leave to the Juniors no material possessions. We can't—we're broke. We do leave them, however, heaps of good luck and hope that with this they will be able to carry on the high standards which we have set for them.

We hereby nominate and appoint as executor, Mr. Seamans, and request that he be exempt from giving any surety on his bond, as such.

Signed

THE CLASS OF 1931.

In testimony whereof, we, the Class of 1931, have signed, published, undersigned, who, at our request, in our presence and in the presence of each other, have hereto subscribed their names as witnesses to said will.

The Class of 1932 may well be proud of its achievements during the past year. Not only have its members been prominent in extra-curricula activities,—but they have also excelled in scholarship. At the spring election, the Honorary Society opened its doors to eighteen members of the Junior Class.

In all lines of athletic competition members of the Class of 1932 have been influential in maintaining the enviable records set by former Brookline teams.

Throughout the year, the members of the Class have been prominent in Prize Speaking, in Dramatics, on the Sagamore, and in the many other organizations of the school.

As the Class moves onward in its march toward graduation, they look eagerly ahead to their new duties and responsibilities as Seniors.

Owing to the large size of the two lower classes, a series of three socials instead of one was given to the Freshmen by the Sophomores at the beginning of the year, and they were most enthusiastically enjoyed by all.

This has been a memorable year for the Class of 1933 because so many notable records have been made by members of the class. A high standard has been maintained scholastically, and the class has been well represented athletically. Many boys participated in football, swimming, and other sports, while the girls have been equally alert in their activities.

The Class is particularly proud of one of its members, who not only won a first prize in the Prize Speaking contest, an achievement rarely gained by a Sophomore, but he also scored distinctive success as the leading man in the annual Dramatics. Several others proved their ability socially in their Senior Social entertainment.

With these achievements behind them, the Class of 1933 feel sure they have ahead of them two more enjoyable and triumphant years which will carry them to the finish with a notable and satisfying record.

On a lovely morning in early September, a throng of boys and girls gathered at the Brookline High School to be known for the following year as the Freshman Class, the Class of 1934 in the history of the school.

This group of ambitious students was able to effect its class organization early in October, electing from its number the class officers for the year, its representatives to the Marshal force, the members of the Court of Justice and Teacher-Student Council.

As the year progressed the various abilities and interests of the class manifested themselves. Two boys earned a Varsity "B" in swimming and other enthusiastic members showed their ability in several activities of the school. The girls also showed an enthusiasm and skill as marked as the boys. The first year of the Class of 1934 promises well for the remainder of the time to be spent in Brookline High School.

The Teacher-Student Council, consisting of nine teachers chosen by the Faculty, and nine pupils elected by the student body, acts in a friendly way as a kind of a clearing house for the faculty and the student body, while, with the aid of the Marshals and the Court of Justice, it aims to improve the morale of the school and to maintain forever the high standards established by its reputation. The avowed purpose of the Council is to make Brookline High School, in collaboration with the Head Master, the peer of any school of its kind in the world—bar none. It can be done.

The Court of Justice, the judicial branch of the student government in Brookline High School, passes judgment upon cases of misbehavior referred to it by the Headmaster, the Captain of the Marshals, and the President of the Teacher-Student Council.

The aim of the Court is not only to impress on the mind of the student the seriousness of the misdemeanor he has committed, but also to help him to correct that mistake. It gives the accused student a feeling that he has received fair judgment from a body which thoroughly understands the student's viewpoint. The decision of the Court is subject to the criticism of the Headmaster only.

With a membership of 650, the Girls' League began the year 1930, striving to bring about a closer bond among the girls of the High School. The first meeting was a tea in April when the High School girls and their mothers met the eighth grade girls and their mothers. Next came the party given by the Freshmen. In October three small parties were given to welcome the Freshmen and these were followed by a tea for them and their mothers. This year's program included a Hallowe'en party, at which toys and scrapbooks were made for several charities, and a group of Friday afternoon socials. This year each class has given a one-act play which was coached by Senior Girls. These were very well done and most entertaining.

During the year our clubroom has been painted and furnished and is now used in the afternoon by the League and other clubs, and during school hours as a study room for Senior Advisors and League officers.

Most of the teachers have become honorary members of the League. League members serve as Senior Advisors, Assistants in the Dean's Office and as Library Assistants.

The officers of the League are elected each February and this year we made this the occasion of a very successful supper party which was followed by a play and the announcement of new officers: namely, Mary Clark, President, Bettina Pierce, Vice-President; Dorothea Lakson, Secretary; and Dorothy Burt, Treasurer.

The Honorary Society of this year exceeded that of any previous year in number, having fifty-two members. At the February meeting, sentiment was expressed that it would be advisable to make the requirements for membership more stringent. At the suggestion of a committee appointed for that purpose, the points necessary for admission were raised from six to eight. This specifies one additional point each in scholarship and in outside activities.

The aim of the Honorary Society is to stimulate excellence in scholarship and to increase participation in extra-curricula activities. That the school found it necessary to raise the standards of the Honorary Society is an indication that the Honorary Society has raised the standards of the School.

During the year 1930-1931, the Sagamore has earnestly striven to attain to great heights. Both the business and editorial departments have been seriously impeded in this aim by the lack of much-desired co-operation. However, the condition of financial stress was slightly remedied by a portion of the proceeds from a masterly production of the "Private Secretary."

With the advent of September a new system was instituted in the circulation department: no more were Sagamores to be sold in the corridors and the lunch room.

The term was ended with a delightful party at which the faculty advisors and members of the old as well as new staff were present.

The Sagamore has overcome its great difficulties only through the unceasing effort and superior ability of the faculty advisors, Mr. Harbour and Mr. Jewett.

The Four-Minute Speakers have been formally organized this year in much the same manner as in previous years. Although there were not so many demands for their services within the High School this year, there were more opportunities for speaking in the Grammar Schools.

At the regular meetings, held twice a month, extemporaneous speeches were offered by various members of the Club.

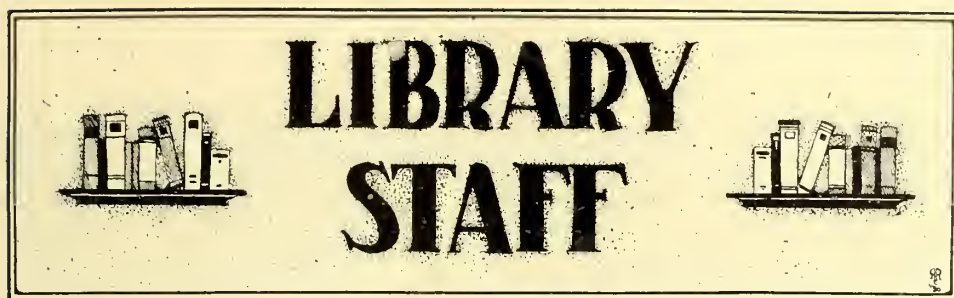

This organization does not attract those who are merely seeking points, but rather those who desire to develop poise and mastery of speech.

The following topics have been presented: Senior Social, The ways in which the Library can be more useful, Dramatics, the Teachers' Club play, "The Show-Off", Red Cross, and Books for Seamen.

After a most successful season, the group now feels competent to bring any matter before the school.

The Library Staff consists of thirty girls who volunteer to serve at least one period a week in the Library.

During Book week the staff presented in assembly scenes from "David Copperfield" by Charles Dickens, and "Pride and Prejudice" by Jane Austen.

In December a masquerade party was held in the library which brought forth a great array of original costumes.

In March a Welsh party was held in honor of our able assistant, Miss Mary M. Stack. The Staff also served tea to the faculty at one of their meetings.

In the Spring, various trips were made to places of interest, such as museums and other libraries.

The French Club has had a number of most successful meetings this year, prominent among which have been the Christmas reunion, consisting of Pere Nicholas and a delightful old Provence Christmas Play, and the Spring meeting, at which the grammar school children entertained.

The Club has learned some interesting new games, and once had the privilege of seeing a "Harold Lloyd" film with captions in French.

Miss Chamberlain has been the special friend of the club, giving it her unlimited patience and generous effort which are heartily appreciated by all members.

The Domestic Science Club is composed of girls from the Domestic Science Classes who are passing in their daily work.

Regular meetings are held the fourth Thursday in the month.

The Club has had many interesting meetings including lectures, social events, a party at the Newton High School and in return the club entertained Newton in the 'Girls' League Room on February 12, 1931.

It has been a very successful year for the club, thanks to Miss Smith and Miss Jones who have given so much co-operation.

An unusually active and profitable year was spent by the Troop. Many new members were added, making a total membership of 45. In October the girls busied themselves with the presentation of two performances of Jean Gros' Marionettes. An exceptionally large number of Christmas cards were sold. The High School Troop were well represented in the Minstrel Course which aided in the preparation of all the Brookline Troops for the Demonstration Rally held in March.

The Troop contributed a great deal of Community Service. It participated in several High School activities, among them the Girls' League Tea given for new girls and their mothers, and the Christmas Party where scrap books and toys were made for needy children. The members of the Troop devoted their study periods to duty in the Emergency Room. The Woman's Needlework Guild distributed the dresses and other garments made by the girls during the year.

On account of their many activities, the girls will receive fewer badges than usual. This year instead of presenting a scholarship, the Troop is helping to furnish the Girls' League Room by contributing a settee.

As another successful year of the Brookline High School Bank is brought to a close, it is gratifying to note its splendid results.

These results were due to the untiring efforts of our able advisors, Miss Barnard and Mr. Atticks as well as to the keen activities of the Receiving Tellers and the Board of Directors.

Shortly after the opening of school a small group of students revived the old Debating Society, put new life into it by the addition of informal discussions to the previous formal debate. At several meetings prepared debates were presented which were criticised by the members. More emphasis, however, was put on informal discussions of current topics and subjects of school interest.

As a happy culmination of the season, a debate was given by the Club at assembly on, Resolved: "That the new plan of individualized study should be adopted in the high schools and colleges of America." Judging from the attention of the audience, the pupils enjoyed the discussion.

The Club already has ambitious plans for the future with debates scheduled with Cambridge Latin in November and with Auburn, Maine, High School.

Junior Red Cross

This year Brookline High School raised enough money to send a delegate to the National Red Cross Convention held in Washington, D. C., from April thirteenth to sixteenth. Carola Nasmyth was the student so honored, because she was the member chosen by the Metropolitan Chapter of Boston to reward her faithfulness in Red Cross activities and because her qualifications seemed admirably suited to such a mission.

At the opening of the Convention the delegates were welcomed by President Hoover who congratulated the organization on its splendid increase of membership and the great work that has been done in relief throughout the latest disaster—the drought. He praised the far-sightedness of the Red Cross officials in refusing to accept an appropriation from Congress and continuing the work on a volunteer basis.

A member of the Pan-American Union presented the Red Cross with a standard displaying the flags of the 21 republics of the American continent, in order that the flags, symbolical of the union of the Americans, might be a constant reminder of the service of the Red Cross to international peace.

During the past year Brookline High School Red Cross has contributed to the National Children's Fund, and the National Service Fund. It has provided Thanksgiving dinners for local families and milk for school children, and has sought to aid in the unemployment situation. The largest collection was the sum of $95 for drought relief.

The Band was reorganized at the beginning of the school year and under the capable leadership of Mr. McCoy, it proved its worth at the football games. This was the first time in its history, that the Band appeared in entirety at games other than the one with Newton. After launching a membership campaign, a great number of underclassmen joined this organization, and it will furnish a fine nucleus for next year.

As usual the greatest event was Class Day, when there assembled the finest and largest band in the history of musical activities in B. H. S.

After an eventful season in 1930, of playing on various occasions, the Orchestra went quickly to work in order to make this year a memorable one. It has played at several affairs, and its progress has been steady and rapid which is very largely due to its leadership.

The Girls' Glee Club has been most fortunate this year in having Mr. Burbank for its director. The Monday meetings of this group of girls, approximately ninety in number, have been most enjoyable. Not one has regretted using the three-quarters of an hour practice for such an interesting and pleasurable exercise to say nothing of its value to each one.

The favorite choruses came chiefly from the widely known light operas of Gilbert and Sullivan. The performance of April 28 by the club included one of these choruses and showed the result of this good training.

The Boys' Glee Club again scores under the able leadership of Thomas Reynolds, its president for three successive years. The boys have carried on their work admirably at informal meetings, and have made some noteworthy performances in conjunction with the Girls' Glee Club.

The fine school spirit of the Club was manifested in their able support in the Senior Social.

Two members brought added distinction by vocalizing from a prominent local radio station.

To all boys who really enjoy singing at any time this Club offers an excellent opportunity not only to sing correctly with others but also the chance to develop their own voices properly.

Guidance Department

Secretary
JOHN V. JEWETT

Director
ANN REYNOLDS

The Guidance Department was instituted by the School Board at the request of Mr. Jewett, September, 1930.

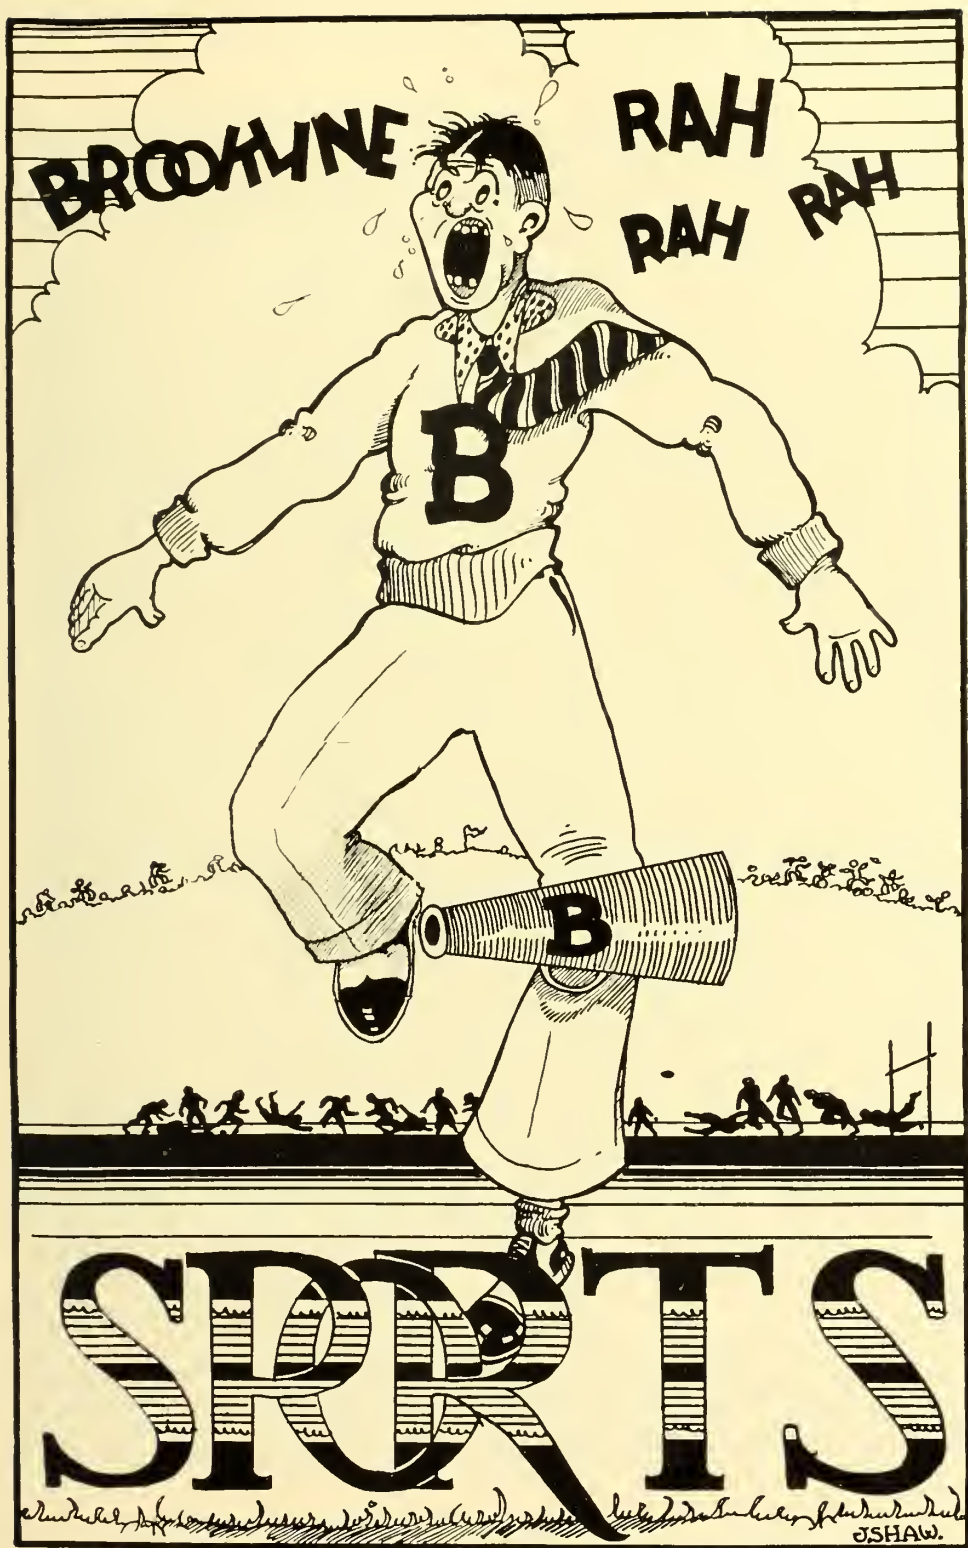

Although guidance work is being done in several schools throughout the East, there is no community which has taken the strong, forward movement as Brookline has done in this Department; creating, at the very beginning, a reference library and every facility for individual help.

The aim of the Department is "To keep a larger number of children profitably in school and facilitate their leaving under conditions favorable for continued education and worthwhile employment."

The emphasis, this year, has been placed upon the High School work although the facilities of the Department have been introduced throughout the school system.

To be of greatest value, guidance work, educational or vocational, is distinctly an individual problem. No one person can always determine the best solution of a human problem; but the co-operation of many minds, each stimulated by an earnest desire to serve, produces results at times seemingly impossible. The Brookline Guidance Department has this motto, "Help: make a record if possible, but in any case, help."

The Director is mindful and deeply appreciative of the hearty support of the Superintendent and the School Board and of the co-operation of principals and teachers.

The Football Team of 1930 had one of the best seasons a Brookline team has ever experienced. In playing a schedule of nine hard games, it was defeated only once. Mr. Fitzgerald in the capacity of coach to the team for the second season, whipped the eleven into a mental and physical condition which enabled it to crush its opponents.

The big game of the season, the one played with Newton on Thanksgiving morning, a yearly event, resulted in a complete victory for B. H. S. Newton was defeated by the astounding score of 38 to 7, a victory which blotted out all memory of one defeat.

Boys' Swimming

Captain, WILLIAM HYLAND '31

Manager, CLARENCE FUNK '31

Coach, MR. JOHN COUTTS

The Swimming Team was built around four regulars from last year: William Hyland, Mortimer Silverman, Robert Richey, and Glenn Churchill. It swam in unusually difficult competitions this year in order to be in readiness for the Meehan Meet in which it was defeated in 1930. For nine years Brookline High Swimming Team had won the Meehan Trophy, but in 1930 lost to Gardner High. The new method of training surely proved successful, for the 1931 Team came from behind and secured the Cup by a score of twenty-three points. William Hyland, Bob Richey, and Glenn Churchill deserve much credit for their fine performance on that occasion.

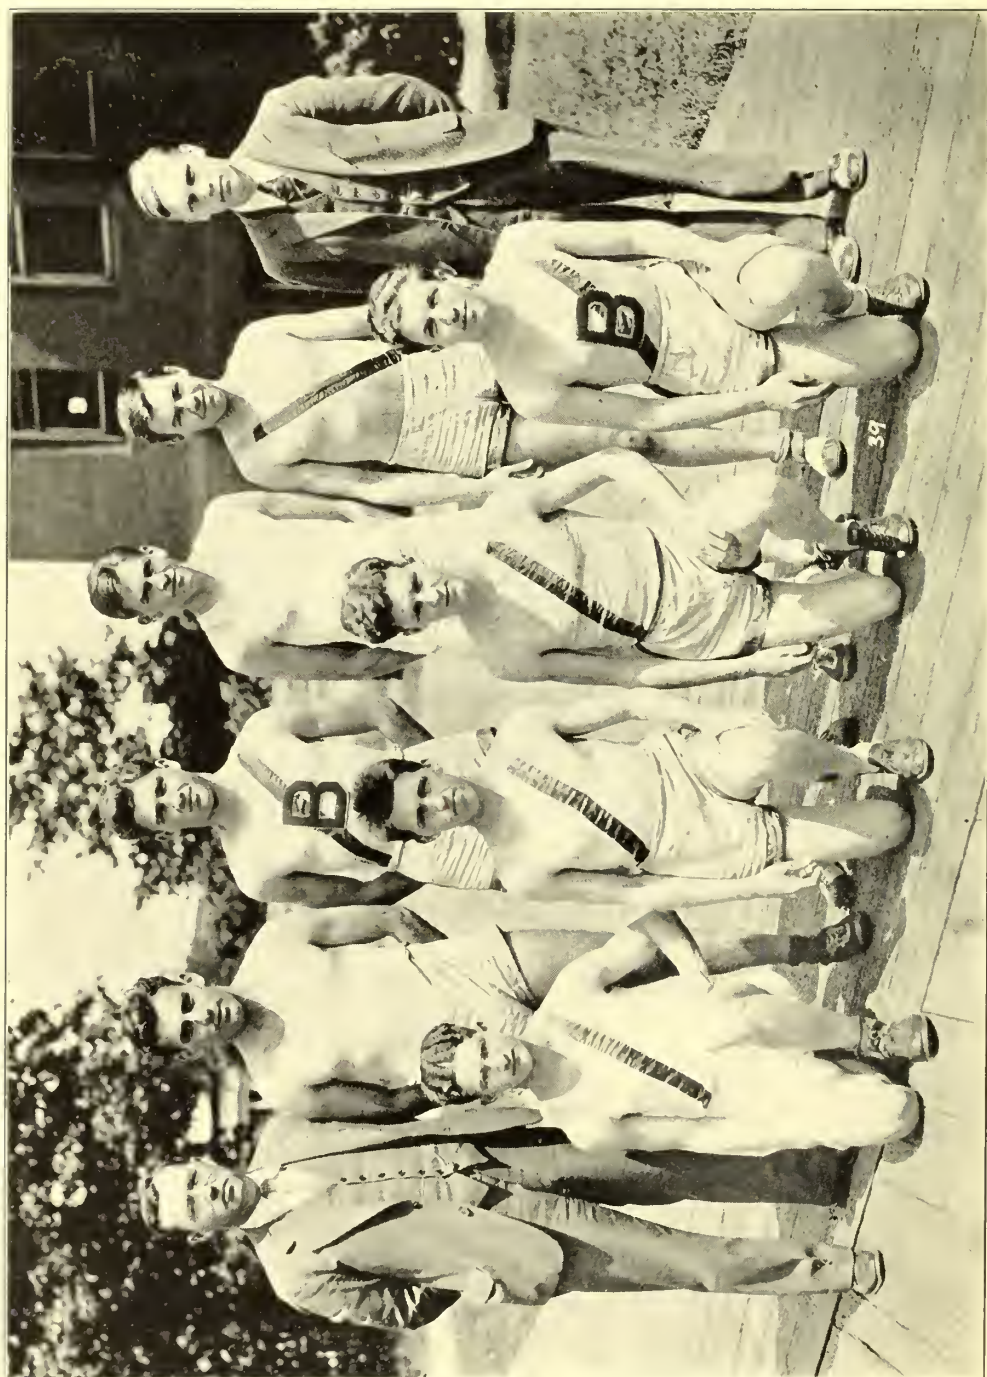

It was a great loss to the school when its old friend and coach, "Jay Mack," left, but the department was specially fortunate in securing John Coutts as coach for he was thoroughly acquainted with all of "Mac's" fine training points which tended towards a championship. We congratulate him and the Team upon their excellent coaching.

With a very few veterans the indoor track team began its stiff schedule. Although the team this year did not win any of its dual meets, it gave each opponent a hard battle. While the first encounter with Brockton at their Armory proved fatal to the team, Chester Litman gave an outstanding performance taking a first in the hurdles, and a tie for first in the 300.

In the first meet at Brookline, Newton defeated Brookline by a wide margin of 52 $\frac{2}{3}$ to 24 $\frac{1}{3}$. At the second meet in Newton's drill shed, Brookline was also defeated although Brigham, Litman, and Varney succeeded in romping home each with a first in the 600, hurdles, and high jump respectively.

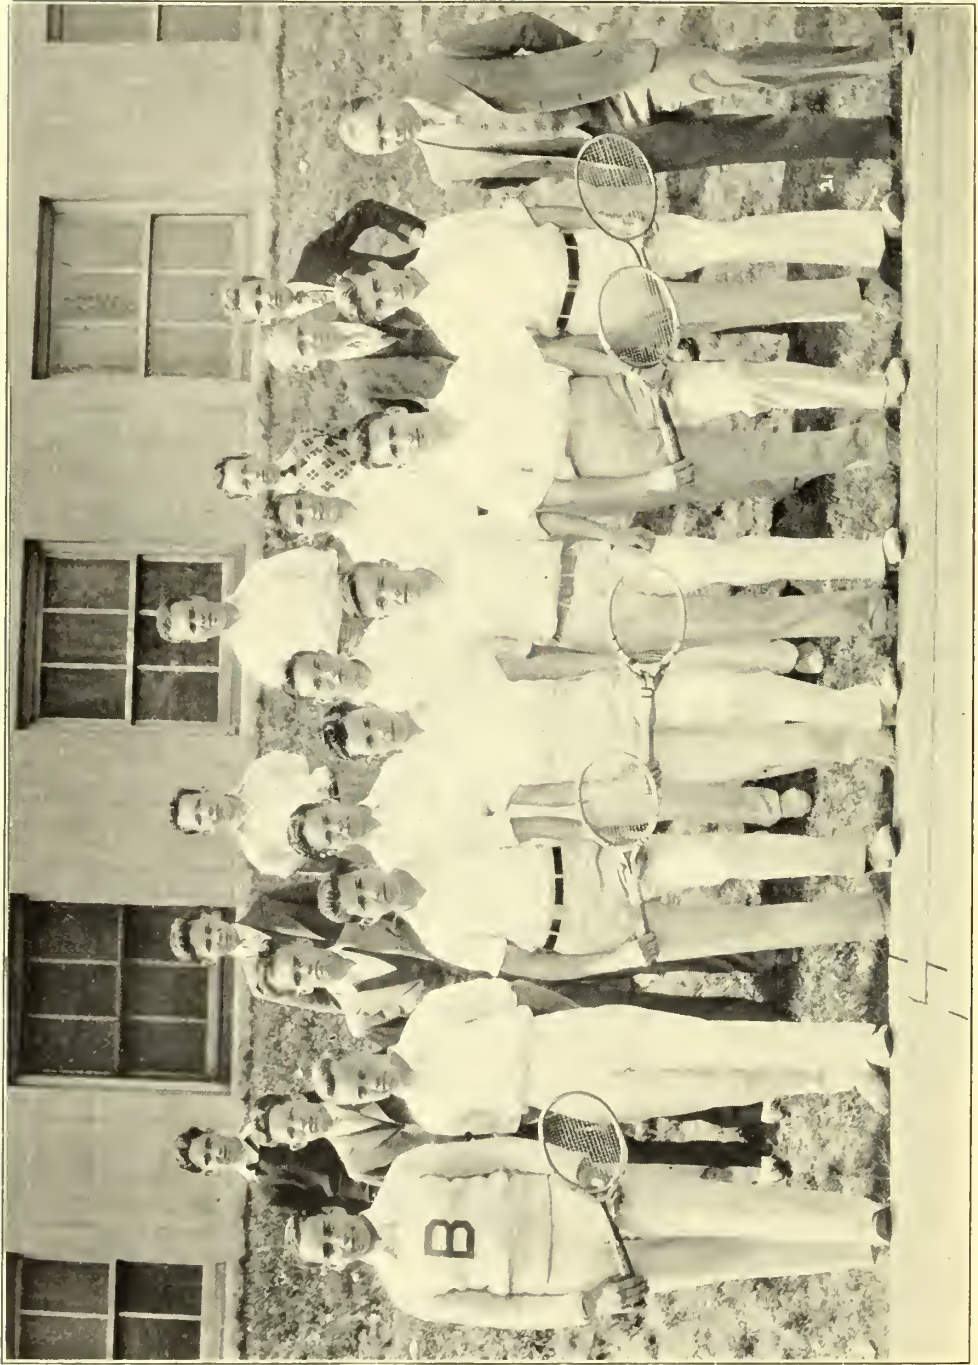

The last of the dual meets was with Watertown, to whom the Brookline Tracksters, after a hard battle surrendered. In the meantime the team had participated in various interscholastic meets, including the Northeastern, Boston Athletic Association, Andover, and State Meets.

The interscholastic point gatherers were Lindsey Brigham, winner of 600 in the Northeastern and Andover Meets; Frederick Varney, State champion high jumper; Ralph Plotkin, broad jumper; and Chester Litman, hurdler.

With these stars as a foundation the outdoor track team is looking forward to a successful season.

Approximately fifty girls turned out loyally every Monday, and practically the entire number made the class letters. The Freshmen had the largest number in practice, while the graduating class had but one member; but the team led by this representative, Leona Wallenberg, carried away all the honors in the inter-class meet.

At the recent meeting of the team Anne Delano was elected Captain for next year and Elizabeth Howard, manager.

Another year has passed in which the Girls' Swimming Team has been very successful under the training of their new coach, Miss Sutherland.

One inter-class meet was held during the season. The captains on this occasion were Rosalind Badaracco of the Seniors, Gladys Norris of the Juniors, Eleanor Copeland of the Sophomores, and Deborah Kinsman of the Freshmen. The Seniors won this meet by a score of 24 to 3. The remaining three points were scored by the Juniors.

A school tournament was held in which everyone from the four classes who was interested could participate. The team was selected from the results of this tournament.

The school has been especially fortunate to have Mrs. Wightman, the noted tennis player, to practice with throughout the year, and as a result of it, the team has shown steady improvement.

Four of the girls, Rosalind Badaracco, Anne Delano, Sally Jones, and Gladys Norris played in the National Indoors Tournament at Longwood.

Girl's Riding Club

This spring the Department of Physical Education organized a Riding Club for girls who had already had some riding experience, and who were physically fit. After a careful investigation of the various riding schools was made, it was decided that the Blue Hill Riding School offered the best advantages including good horses and the best of bridle paths. It has proved to be an excellent choice.

The first lesson took place March thirtieth, and the lessons continued until the end of the year. The class was divided into two groups. The more advanced riders forming the first, and the less advanced the second. The first group rode from three to four o'clock, the second from four to five. On each trip the class was accompanied by two riding mastes and an instructor from the Physical Department of the High School. On account of the numerous paths afforded by the Blue Hills Reservation the classes were able to take different ones at each lesson. The Riding Club was a very successful venture and there is every prospect of its continuance.
